ST. KITTS TOURISM AUTHORITY 2011-2012 CRUISE SCHEDULE

Message from Senator Ricky Skerritt, Minister of Tourism & International Transport.

After four years of very rapid growth, St. Kitts has become well established as one of the leading cruise destinations in the Caribbean, and has won the respect and envy of many of our neighbours for our achievements. This means that cruise passenger expectations for their onshore experience in St. Kitts have become higher than ever. We must therefore now focus on better taking care of our guests so that their expectations will not be disappointed. Maintaining our reputation for quality will be essential to keeping us in the cruise business.

The business of cruise tourism has become extremely competitive over the years and is no longer just a numbers game. It is primarily about delivering a quality onshore experience with good value for money to each and every cruise passenger. Harassing or ripping off a cruise passenger is not an option. The current economic climate has resulted in an even more demanding visitor who now has more advanced information and many more leisure travel options available to choose from. We must therefore work even harder and smarter to improving our local service delivery standards. This is absolutely necessary if we are to grow the economic benefits from cruise tourism.

I therefore urge all stakeholders to do everything we can to ensure that all of our cruise visitors leave our shores well served and pleased about their St. Kitts experience.

Sky Safari St. Kitts

Sky Safari Tours is a highly advanced, scenic zipline tour through the St. Kitts Rainforest, flying over Wingfield River. This zipline course consists of one trainer line, 180ft long, followed by four larger zipline, lengths from 500ft to 1,350 ft. This tour strives to unite eco-adventure with St. Kitts interpretive knowledge.

As you fly our lines you will experience unobstructed views of Brimstone Hill. While flying through the famous "Valley of the Giants", home of some of the largest trees on the island.

We are located in Old Road Village, the first English settlement in the west indies. Our base site is nestled on wingfield estate, home of the oldest rum distillery and last surviving aqueduct in the Eastern Caribbean.

Our Office is a house on the Sugar estate ruins, with original structures, equipment, chimney, aqua duct and other interesting historical elements that are available for viewing, our knowledgeable guides can offer you an informative tour.

Our entire site is adjacent to the renowned Romney Manor / Caribelle Batik tourist attractions. A three minute walk will bring you from our exciting tour to the beautifully landscaped botanical gardens.

WINGFIELD ESTATE EST. 1625

Wingfield Estate is an amazing destination. Its place in Caribbean is unique. It was the first land grant in the English Caribbean. Its first owner was Sam Jefferson, the great, great, great grandfather of Thomas Jefferson, 3rd President of the United States.

The setting is stunning, adjacent to Romney Manor, home of Caribelle Batik, the interpretative ruins explain how sugar was made from cane and how rum was made from sugar. You will see an aqueduct, the mill house, the boiling house, a firing tunnel (very mysterious) a historically unique 17th century rum distillery and so much more.

In 2010 archeologists discovered, buried and hidden for centuries an intact Rum Distillery. It pre-dates 1675 and is the oldest standing distillery known in the West Indies.

The estate is a photographers dream as you wander through a by gone age. We invite you to share the passion of the archeologists who regularly visit this important site. Join us to dig for our history.

The Friendly Island

St. Kitts
follow your heart

‘Liamuiga’ is the name given to this lovely island by the native Amerindians who lived here. Its meaning, ‘Fertile Island’, suggests a friendly environment which undoubtedly attracted European colonists later on. Indeed, ‘Saint Christopher’ (the name attributed to the navigator, Christopher Columbus, and sometimes shortened to the more familiar, ‘St. Kitts’) was the first island on which both England and France established their Caribbean Empires.

Like many other countries, it has a turbulent history of massacres of indigenous people, slavery and war. Africans, brought against their will, toiled, struggled and eventually prevailed against an oppressive system. Their descendants now comprise the majority of the population, living easily in a multi-ethnic and multi-cultural matrix in which the elements of Native America, Africa and Europe are combined.

The island, moreover, retains a welcoming aspect: a forested central mountain range; verdant fields, dotted with 18th century sugar mills, sloping gently to the inviting sea; charming towns and villages strung like jewels along the necklace of the Island Main Road; the narrow and picturesque peninsula reaching to the sister island of Nevis. All of its attractions are accessible, and many can be experienced in one day.

Then there are the people. From the knowledgeable taxi driver; to the bright-eyed children on their way to school; the generous and caring attendants at the hotels, restaurants and shops; office workers ambling purposefully along the streets of Basseterre, our people project a country on the go, youthful but Experienced and confident.

Romney Manor

No visit to St.Kitts is complete without a visit to Caribelle Batik at Romney Manor, Old Road. Once owned by Sam Jefferson II, the great, great Grandfather of Thomas Jefferson, third president of the USA, this estate is the oldest estate in the English speaking Caribbean.

Caribelle Batik is a unique studio which produces colorful clothing, accessories and gifts. Using ancient Indonesian techniques of resisting dye with wax. Caribelle uses 100% sea island cotton to create distinctive designs which last a lifetime. Each hand made pieces is unique distinct, beautiful and practical. In addition to the demonstration area where the art form is visualized, there is an expansive shop where friendly staff completes the experience.

Wander around the lush Botanical Gardens and admire the tropical plants including the 350 years old Saman tree, a scene which is any photographer’s paradise.

Beautiful Basseterre

Its French name simply means "lowland," a description that must have been scratched onto a French sea chart sometime during the late 1620s. In the 375 ensuing years there have been many Basseterre's, for earthquakes, floods, hurricanes, fires, and invasions have all swept through this modest community. Set before the dramatic backdrop of St. Kitts' lush green hills, Basseterre today retains much of the elegant Georgian character of Nelson's days.

Basseterre is probably one of the most pleasing capitals to the eye in the Caribbean. Basseterre's Historic District, towards the centre of the town exhibits excellent examples of Creole and West Indian architecture. Basseterre has been around for some time; French Basseterre was a flourishing and much respected town back in 1672 leading an English visitor to remark that Basseterre was a 'town of good big-ness, whose houses are well-built of Bricks, Freestone and Timber; where merchants have their storehouses, and is well inhabited by tradesmen and are well served with such commodities, both for back and belly, together with utensils for the houses and Plantations...'. By the end of the 18th Century Basseterre had grown in size and boasted (including the village of Irish Town) a population of 3000 and some 800 houses. Devastating city fires since then, though, forced much of the town to be rebuilt. It has, happily, been faithfully restored to indigenous styles even up to the new Government Headquarters and the Courthouse. A walk through Independence Square, The Circus and Liverpool Row shows excellent examples of public, commercial and residential styles.

Did you know...?

The islands of St. Kitts and Nevis are two of the Caribbean's oldest colonized territories. St. Kitts became the first British colony in the West Indies in 1624 and then became the first French colony in the Caribbean in 1625, when both nations decided to partition the island.

Did you know...?

St. Kitts became a successful colony of England and France and served as a base and a model for the establishment of other English and French colonies in the Caribbean. African people were brought to the islands from the 1630s to toil on the tobacco, cotton and then sugar plantations. This infamous trade and exploitation of humans continued well into the 19th century.
